What is the lesson that sweet Autumn gives From harvest fields, and orchards spreading wide, From melody of winds and rustling leaves Bear fruit, do good to man, in God abide! AN ADIEU TO WINTER. Adieu, hoar Winter, parent of the year, In aspect stern, yet natures kindest friend; Like Father Christmas, held by children dear, Thou from thy store dost richest treasures lend. The purifying frost heals earth and air, Of noisome grub that mars the fairest ground, Of noxious vapours lurking here and there, Dread source of pestilence where these are found. The frost doth serve to loose the stubborn soil, Crumbles and breaks the boulder and the stone, To form new earth, and, in his playful toil, Regenerates the land, unseen, alone. f The snow descends, the beauteous virgin snow, Emblem of heavenly purity and peace: And soon all nature, hill...
